WASHINGTON, D.C. – Tonight, more than 10,000 constituents from western Pennsylvania joined U.S. Congressman Jason Altmire (PA-04) in a live telephone town hall. Congressman Altmire invited residents of the Fourth Congressional District to participate in an open discussion about the important issues in western Pennsylvania and the country. During the call, western Pennsylvanians were able to ask Congressman Altmire questions related to the economy, jobs and infrastructure improvements in western Pennsylvania.

"The issues currently being debated in Congress directly impact the people of western Pennsylvania," Congressman Altmire said. "It is important for me to hear from as many constituents as possible about issues such as tax reform, creating jobs, rebuilding our economy, and improving infrastructure in western Pennsylvania. As the year comes to an end, I will work to ensure my constituents' concerns are addressed and will continue to advocate for policies that lessen burdens on western Pennsylvanians."
